

PHILADELPHIA, CHESTER, JERSEY, WILMINGTON

SCOOP USA

48 Years of Community Service

Enjoy the Labor Day Weekend

Pass the word, history has been made - BARACK OBAMA for President of the United States

Bill Cosby

Tony Williams Scholarship Jazz Festival Labor Day Weekend - Holiday Day Inn, Fort Washington, 432 Pennsylvania Ave. see program page 8

2008 Festival Honorees

Bob Perkins

Tony Williams

"In My Daughter's Eyes Conference", an inspirational city wide celebration of the uniqueness of females, their struggles and their triumphs presented by the Philadelphia Anti-Drug/Anti-Violence Network (PAAN), Nu Sigma Youth Services, and Temple School of Social Administration. The conference honored the life and memory of Atiya Valerie Abney, a young civic leader who believed in the potential of youth. Pictured here are Zelda White, Chief Operating Officer (PAAN), Dr. Joi C. Spraggins, Motivational Guest Speaker, Pamela A. Lackey, Conference Chairperson, Loree D. Jones, Keynote Speaker, President & CEO, AchieveAbility

Martin Registers photo

Scholarship winners

Three local teens Richard Coyle (Torresdale) of Archbishop Ryan High School; Rinki Raju (Frankford) of Central High School; and Jessica Shearin (Strawberry Mansion) of John W. Hallahan High School received scholarships from Einstein ranging from $3,500 to $7,000 for excelling during the Center's Discover Healthcare Summer Program, which invites select high school students to meet and shadow nurses, doctors and a variety of healthcare professionals during the summer months. The Discover Healthcare Summer Program honors Stephen Niklauski, son of Einstein employee Marie Niklauski, who lost his life in 2004; and introduces Philadelphia high school students to a variety of health careers as well as teaching resume writing and interviewing skills.

Front row from left to right: Ellen Goldberg, Coordinator of Volunteers at Einstein; Richard Coyle, honoree from Archbishop Ryan High School; Jessica Shearin, honoree from John W. Hallahan; Rinku Raju, honoree from Central High School; and Andy Jickling. Back row from left to right: Andre Brown, and Michael Niklauski, HR Compliance Assistant at Einstein.